Pulp: Most artists didn’t want credit for paintings

By DAVE WINTLE

"Pulp Fiction Paintings"

Continued from page 20

On the market: A truly rare offering... a unique collection... a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity...

The market for pulp fiction collectibles has been on the rise for some time now, with fans clamoring for rare and obscure titles that capture the spirit of the era. The rise in value has created an opportunity for artists who worked on these books to finally receive the recognition they deserve.

The "Pulp Fiction Paintings" exhibit features a collection of original artwork from some of the most talented artists of the pulp era. From beautiful pin-up girls to action-packed scenes, these paintings are a true testament to the creativity and imagination of the time.

Each piece is presented alongside a brief biography of the artist, giving visitors a glimpse into the world of these forgotten creators.

The exhibit is open daily from 10 AM to 5 PM, and admission is free to the public.

It’s the weekend

It’s the weekend

This weekend, a special exhibition at the Art Museum of Hollywood celebrates the golden age of pulp fiction. The exhibit features original artwork by some of the most talented artists of the era, including stunning pin-up girls and action-packed scenes.

The exhibit is open from 10 AM to 5 PM, and admission is free to the public. Don’t miss your chance to witness a piece of history come to life.